We have the honor to be, Dear Sir, very respectfully yours R. Horn A. I. JAMESON, ROBF. P. RITCHIE, W. CHADWICE. M. BRADY, JAMES CROZIER,

H. O. Bown, W. H. KAY, THOS. G. MARSHALL George Dunks,

Gentlemen: Nothing can be more gratifying than the bener of having succeeded in gaining the approbation and good will of the people of one the most important constituencies in the country. I have a rent pleasure in accepting the nomination alluded to in your requisition. The next Legislative Assembly will probably be the most important that has ever met in this colony, and it behaves all good men to be vigilant, and to exert themselves to insure the successful working of Parliamentary Government. Parliamentary Government.

It may be found well in practice to remember that the misrepresentations of those designing men, who so loudly asserted that you were not qualified to exercise political functions with advantage to yourselves or to the country, have been signally refuted, and that taelve years of misgovernment proves most conclusively, that they were not competent to hold, or exercise, the office of governors with advantage or safety to the community. Experience shows that it were vain to expect political improvement from men in whose official career is not to be found materia progress, when not identified with their personal profit or advancement. I confess that when speculating on the causes which led to the disestrous retrogression of the past, I am puzzled to account for the long con innance of a political system, to which is traceable so much unmixed evil-a system containing within itself such active elements of ruin which when considered in the abstract, might have been expected to put an end to its existence much sooner. Nor indeed is this all. I will be the duty of future legislators, government to fearle-sly probe the complicated disorders which paved a way for its final

It is not probable that any modern English community has suffered politica ills so para-ently as the people of British Columnia. Tue mount of maladministration, and the extraordinary nature of official aggrandizement is perfectly astounding. We have seen mere adventurer. employed as envoys entrusted with importan s ate secrets -- adventurers who are universal execrated, whom the people have never trusted and have long suspected-creatures who are to British Columbians what the hatefu Claudiaus were to the Ancient Romans Any to crown this humiliating drama, a perverse and apparently senseless superior authority rey now begun will doubtless be of receive them with falsome flattery, and apntry, and anything plause and preferment is showered upon geological explora-

The Fisheries along our coasts promise to become very profitable, and as the bominion tovernment has agreed to extend its protection and encouragement to that valuable and important branch of industry. I will endeavor to secure for your district its full share of any sid that may be appropriated for that purpose.

Act being able at this, time to explain my views at greater length, I will take an early opportunity to meet yet personally and cohectively in the different settlements, when I may bring unter your notice other questions of a Travincial and Dominiousi character.

In contagion, tendement, if you should do me the honor to return me to the House of Commons as your representative, I pledge myselt to faithfully serve your instructs to the best of my shiftly. their heads in proportion to the mischie that they have done. lesson which these events teach us is. that gross legislation and extrene agitation are inseperably connected -that each is the blood relation of the other. Nay more, the danger indicated is to be apprehended by placing great powers in the hands of our governors without being secured y immediate not remote, certain not dubious constitutional laws that those power shall not e abused. It will hardly be disputed by men of candone and experience that there are certain requisites indispensably necessary to the security and efficiency of all just governments the most important of which I believe to be, freedom and security against wrong. Now I think you will readily admit that most civilized governments have succeeded pretty well in securing the people against wrong from each other; but to secure them by laws against wrong from the government itself, is a problem of a far more difficult sort, which w nations since the commencement of gov ernments have attempted to solve. But it is problem upon the solution of which depends the freedom and security of every existing nation against oppression and peculation, and which from its importance commends use f to the anxious and impartial consideration of all men who are desirous of rondering permanent Service to mankind

That it is not the business of those who govern to compel public opinion to follow them, but that it is their duty to follow public opinion, is a canon of my political creed. Unfortunately the practice of those who have governed this colony, has been, both by precept and example to think differently, but the day is not far distant when the predictions of the advocates of justice and of reason shall be verified,—when the unjust and barnarous laws which disfranchised so many intelligent and worthy citizens shall exist only as evidence of the bigotry, and sordid ignorance of those from whom they emanated.—when the promising future proclaims the results of Confederation, the promotion of arts and science, the diffusion of useful truth, of education, of civil and religious liberty. I earnestly trust that with the advantages afforded by Confederation and Responsible covernment our popular representatives may so far ignore local issues as to faithfully and permanently reform the bad legislation of the past, and by a comprehensive and liberal policy, inaugurate a new era in our political history and insure the prosperity and appiness of all.

I have the honor to be, Gentlemen, very sincerely yours, T. BASIL HUNPHREYS.

Such a thing as finality in reform is not possible; and Ireland is an illustration. The Disestablishment of the Irish without a dissentient English voice, as the Westmant Bill. Church swept away one grievance,—one of long standing. The Land Bill removed in a great measure another evil.

But still the Irish want more—still what is more amazing than the rapidity, is greater reforms-one that they call the healthiness-if we may so term it-of its Nationalism; and the tendency of events seems likely that they will at last secure growth. We have admitted that there is a certain kinship between one phase of Nationalism and Fenianism. But the broad differit. It may not come in the way that a Fenians is clearly shown by the complete grand idea of a confederation of Eng-land, Canada, Australia, and the West Indies be carried out as it probably in strict compliance with law and order.

They are marching steadily and honorably to will, Ireland beyond a doubt will the goal that they set before them. We trust the goal that they set before them. We trust they may not reach it; but if they do, the blame and the disgrace will be with England, not with Ireland. own Nationalism. But it does not a seperate and independent societies of from the British Nation. Neither would it be desirable either in her interest or in the interest of markind. In a grand Anglo-Saron Confederation, Ireland may take her place as a Province—a State—not of Eagland, not of Great Britain, but as a Province of the British Confederation. In such a case the Parliament of England would no longer give the supreme law to the British nation, but would merely legislate for its own local interests, whilst the Irish Parliament would do the same. The Supreme Parliament would no longer be elected by Great Britain and Ireland, but would be formed out of representatives elected by the ide-spread provinces of the Great English-speaking family, in Europe, Asia, Africa, America, and Australusia. In no other way does it seem possible for Ireland ever to acquire the exclusive management of her own local affairs ; and in no other way would it be more desirable. Ireland to day holds a higher political status than Canada, or Australia, or any outlying dependency of the Crown. But the present political relationship between the United Kingdom and the Colonies must cease. The great colonies can be held but a short time longer by the present national tie. But in a grand confederation of British States, they may remain united forever. If Irish Nationalism will take that form—a united English-speak-ing nation, belting the globe and ruleing the world, then Ireland will command not only the warm, but the active sympathies of Canadians and Australians in securing for her a local parliament, and at the same time a greater nationality than the world ever saw before. That matters are tending in the direction that we have indicated, may be inferred from the following extracts. The Belfast

Weekly Examiner of July 1st :

The Irish difficulty is thickening, and, will be its solution. The disestablishment of the English Church in this country was thrown out as a bait, but was inefficient to satisfy the national demand. The Land Bill followed, but its provisions were too nar-row and too temporizing to make amends for an irrevocable past. It was also blighted in its prospects by the Gladstone mistake of the Westmeath Committee, and by the tardy ac-Question. The people of Ireland have pro-nounced against the two great "remedial measures," and now call loudly for the with drawal of Coercion, and for the liberty of determining for themselves. The days of the great O'Connell are revived, and, with the memories of his glorious struggles for inde-pendence and right, men of almost the same mould with the Irish Tribune have sprung into existence. The enemies of Ireland may vaunt and rage against the new Leaders o the people—they may traduce and maligrations who would lift up and redeeman almost lost land-but the cause for which Ireland has long struggled, which no amount of badger-ing or piecemeal legislation could induce her to reliquish, must only be strengthened by the unscrupulous and irrations! opposition o its foes. What do the people require? Do they demand anything derogatory to the hon-our, enything inimical to the power, anything injurious to the precedency of England? They do not. On the contrary, let the real enemies of England ponder is well—they ask for that which alone can reconstitute them a for that which alone can reconstitute them a Nation and a People—for that which, in the hour of England's peril—and it may arise very soon—shall render Ireland the right arm of the sister kingdom, which would make us a united people under one sovereign, a terror to the tyrants of Burope and a safeguard to a real United Kingdom. Seven hundred years' experience has proved one fact—England cannot avara Ireland. Well, then, let ber govern herself. This is what Ireland demands—this is what will remove the insoluble diffithis is what will remove the incoluble diffi-eulty, and what we must have if the voice of our people means anything—Legislative Inde-pendence.

The grand demonstration held in Dublis on Monday is a tign of the times. The wealth, the ability, the intelligence of Ireland were there represented, and sounded a note that was unmistakable. To be sure—and we say if more in sorrow than anger—corrow for the Ulster of '82—the North was not in its place. The Presbyterianism of honest John Martin in the minds of our Whig-and-Tory-led few of Belfast, is a thing to be dreaded more than admired. They prefer—for they are taught to prefer—the serfdom of Provincialism to the Freedom of Nationality. But the masses in Ulster, who are the People, are beginning to see and to feel that the pro-English acclivities of the Morthern Press are not likely to lead them to anything like liberty and good government, or to stop the tide of emigration which is flowing from our shores. Ulster will pronounce in due time. We are slow to act, but steady and courageous in following where duty gives command and honor leads. It matters little, then if, for the moment, we bave not a larger share in the movement which is to regenerate our country; and it matters less if the little band of Ulsfermen which goes to the front in the battle for Country should meet the scotts and unavailing ridicule and misrepresentation of the fpes of Self-Government. They can afford to despise meanness in what gare seever it presents itself. They have on their side the cause of Truth and Justice, Home and Fatherland, and they care not who mock and falsify their instantions.

The above are the views of Nationalism taken by an Irish paper. The following, however, is from the London Examiner. and substantially concurs with its Irish cotemporary as to the ultimate success of the agitation for Irish Nationalism :-

Great Britais is before long to become the elder member of a great British Pederation including British America, British Australia and British India, there is no good reason f Great Britain as Scotland is, why the in the far-stretching United British States that are to be. But a bad reason exists in
